

Heber Boy Succumbs To Appendicitis

Dean J. Murdock, 28, died at the Heber hospital at three o'clock Monday morning of a ruptured appendix. He had been ill five days. He was born April 20, 1912 at Heber City, son of Earl S. and Mabel Bell Murdock, and was married August 2, 1934 to Helen Jeffs, who survives. He is also survived by a daughter, Joyce, his mother, Mrs. Mabel M. Murdock, his step-father, John D. Clyde; three brothers, Forest, Doyle and Niff Murdock and two sisters, Roris and Nina Bell Murdock all of Heber City.

Mr. Murdock was a holstman at the Judge mine in Park City. He was a member of the L. D. S. church and had served as a Sunday school teacher. At the time of his death he was president of the Third Quorum of Elders, a ward teacher and a temple worker.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Wasatch stake tabernacle in charge of Bishop Ralph Giles. Interment was in the Heber cemetery.

Heber Boy Succumbs To Appendicitis

Dean J. Murdock, 28, died at the Heber hospital at three o'clock Monday morning of a ruptured appendix. He had been ill five days. He was born April 20, 1912 at Heber City, son of Earl S. and Mabel Bell Murdock, and was married August 2, 1934 to Helen Jeffs, who survives. He is also survived by a daughter, Joyce, his mother, Mrs. Mabel M. Murdock, his step-father, John D. Clyde; three brothers, Forest, Doyle and Niff Murdock and two sisters, Roris and Nina Bell Murdock all of Heber City.

Mr. Murdock was a holstman at the Judge mine in Park City. He was a member of the L. D. S. church and had served as a Sunday school teacher. At the time of his death he was president of the Third Quorum of Elders, a ward teacher and a temple worker.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Wasatch stake tabernacle in charge of Bishop Ralph Giles. Interment was in the Heber cemetery.